BioScapes named one of Yorkshire's 'Most Exciting Companies in 2023'

The UK's leading producer of biodiversity planters, BioScapes, based in Seaton Ross near York, is honoured to have been named one of Yorkshire's 'Most Exciting Companies in 2023' by Insider Media.

Interest in the unique, patented wildlife planters has been rapidly gathering momentum since BioScapes was established in 2021 to tackle the huge ecological threat of rapidly decreasing biodiversity by bringing communities closer to nature.

Neil Spiers, Head of Commercial for BioScapes, said: "We are delighted to accept this award from Insider Media. It is another important milestone for us which reaffirms our mission to bring biodiversity and wellbeing to the forefront of organisational strategy, while also raising awareness within communities and, on a more personal level, in homes across the UK.

"External recognition helps to raise awareness of the positive impact these ground-breaking products offer both public and private sector organisations, as they try to meet the challenges of biodiversity and wellbeing."

In the last 18 months, installations have taken place at a range of commercial settings where sustainability and staff wellbeing now form part of core strategic objectives. This includes leading housing developers, Taylor Wimpey and Persimmon Homes, as well as McArthurGlen Group, Europe's leading owner, developer and manager of designer outlets.

In addition, the planters are being well received in the education sector with installations across the sector, from primary to further education settings, including the University of Liverpool and University of West of England, Bristol.

There are four planters in the BioScapes range to accommodate differing site needs, each featuring multiple, integrated habitats designed to help plants, insects, invertebrates, amphibians and small mammals thrive. The planters were designed in collaboration with ecologists to create 'self-contained ecosystems.'
